

Macroeconomic Context

Angolan oil production in February decreased by 9.42% compared to the previous month, reaching a total of 32,253,470 barrels, representing a daily average of 1,123,160 barrels. The price per barrel reached USD 83, driven by conflicts in the Middle East.

Inflation

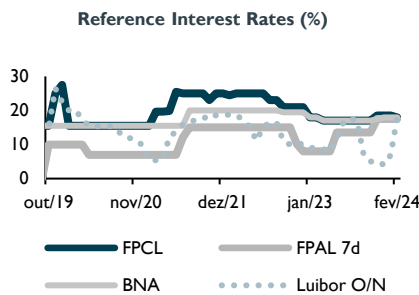

Angola recorded similar inflation in February from 12.53% to 24.07%. Relatively monthly inflation represented an acceleration of 0.9% compared to January and accumulated inflation 5.14%.

Capital Market

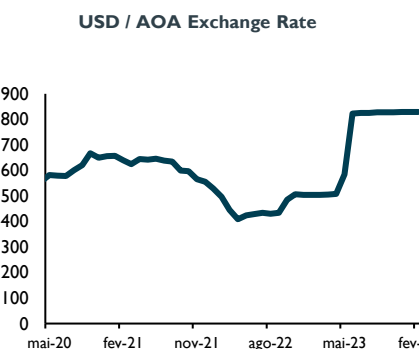

The Angolan state issued securities with longer maturities between 7 and 10.5 years, with yields in the range of 21.00% to 23.00%. With the increase in inflation and high regulatory rates, it is estimated that the state will continue to offer yields close to inflation in order to be able to raise resources to meet its needs.

Foreign Exchange Market

Since the beginning of the year, the BNA has maintained a policy of maintaining the exchange rate, in order to reduce some macroeconomic indicators that are directly impacted by the exchange rate. In this sense, the exchange rate in February registered a rate of 828.514 AOA/USD, which means a slight appreciation of the currency compared to the previous month.

The reported returns represent past data and do not constitute a guarantee of future returns. The disclosed returns would only be obtained if the investment were made and maintained throughout the reference period. For the purpose of calculating returns, subscription, redemption and transfer fees are not taken into account, when applicable, being net of all other fees and charges. The Synthetic Risk and Reward Indicator measures the risk of price variation of the Fund's units, based on the volatility verified in the last 5 years and classifies the Fund's risk level between 1 (minimum risk) and 6 (maximum risk). Lower risk potentially implies lower reward and higher risk potentially implies higher reward. Investment in funds may imply the loss of invested capital if the fund does not have guaranteed capital. Benchmark – the criteria used are the average rate for Time Deposits of up to 90 days and between 90 and 181 days (Effective rate, net of taxes – IAC), available for consultation at the National Bank of Angola. The TxR YTD (Year to Date) is the rate of return (annualized) calculated from the first day of the annual calendar to the moment to which it refers; the TxR 12M is the rate of return for the last 12 months of the Fund (tax free, as defined in the Fiscal Regime of UCIs).
